WELCOME TO SAINT-JUST-EN-CHEVALET

Saint-Just-en-Chevalet has always been considered the capital of the Pays d'Urfé.

Before bearing this name, only the current area of the “Vieux Château” existed, where a small settlement had formed around the public fountain of La Conche (from the Latin concha, meaning “basin”). This was located at the intersection of two ancient Roman roads, which have now become departmental roads.

In the Middle Ages, the town was protected by high walls and solid fortifications.

There is no shortage of activities in Saint-Just-en-Chevalet and the Pays d'Urfé region. Enjoy over 500 km of marked hiking trails (the “Promenades et randonnées en Pays d'Urfé” guide is available from the tourist office, and sample itineraries are available on request at reception). Cycling enthusiasts will also enjoy the weekly cycling/mountain biking trips and the 42 mountain bike trails accessible within a 25 km radius.

The region is ideal for trout fishing thanks to its high-quality rivers (information: Le Bar chez Nat' – +33 (0)4 69 34 58 75). For leisure activities, you will find tennis courts, boules courts, a swimming pool and mini-golf at Le Verdillé, near the campsite (open from July 1 to August 30, water temperature 26°C – info: +33 (0)4 77 65 00 62), not to mention a children's playground. For horse riding, contact the Écuries de la Licorne (Saint-Romain-d'Urfé) on +33 (0)4 77 62 00 24. For information about the region: Tourist Office – +33 (0)4 77 65 05 33.

CURIOSITY

Once upon a time... there was Saint-Just-en-Chevalet.

The origin of its name cannot be established with certainty and is still the subject of several hypotheses: some see a Latin root, "cavatus" (hollowed out, hilly), linked to the topography of the surrounding area, others refer to an old horse relay station located at the crossroads of Roman roads, the shape of the first dwellings, or even a reference to knights because of the surrounding castles.

On the outskirts of the village, the ruins of the former feudal castle of the Dukes of Bourbon and Urfé dominate the town, while a belvedere offers a panoramic view. On the square, you can see a large symmetrical mansion belonging to the Meaux family, as well as the 14th-century Gothic chapel, known as "Notre-Dame du Château ." It was the site of the funeral of Anne d'Urfé, royal bailiff of Forez and brother of Honoré d'Urfé, author of L'Astrée. At the foot of the castle, the 11th-century Conche fountain, a listed historical monument, reveals its grooved troughs where woodcutters sharpened their axes. around it, several buildings were once hotels. In the center of the village, the parish church (late 19th century), built in volcanic stone and donated by the Rochetaillée family, houses a gilded altarpiece, a Pietà, and an organ by Aristide Cavallé-Coll, one of the greatest organ builders of the 19th century.

OUR HISTORY

Since March 1994, Jean-Luc, a passionate chef, and Christelle Dubien, in charge of service and reception, have been the proud owners of the hotel. Originally, the building housed the village post office and a hotel-restaurant: the reception area occupied the former counters, and the postmaster's apartment was located where rooms 8, 9, and 10 are now.

In 2001, the complete acquisition of the building marked the start of major renovation work. Since then, the establishment has been continuously improved: kitchen, rooms, dining room, reception... The breakfast area "Le Jardin du Matin," opened in May 2024, continues this dynamic.

Today, a team of eight people supports the owners on a daily basis. The hotel is also committed to training, welcoming apprentices and, depending on the season, one or two students. The team listens to your feedback and attaches great importance to your comments in order to continuously improve your stay.

In the restaurant, Jean-Luc offers generous cuisine made from fresh, seasonal produce. The menus change every three to four months. The cheese trolley (with many regional specialties) and homemade desserts complete the experience, accompanied by a carefully selected wine list.

The hotel has several categories of rooms, all decorated in different styles: standard, superior, privilege, as well as three family rooms. All the information you need is available, and our team is on hand to advise you. Thank you for your trust: we hope to offer you a stay that meets your expectations.

The entire team at the Hôtel Restaurant de la Poste wishes you a pleasant stay!
